FROM THE EDITOR.

Dear Sirs:—As "Old Chester," "Older," "Skater" and company have been making things rather interesting of late at the skating rink, I thought I would go on Saturday night, which was advertised for the giving out of the prize, and see the fun.

At a number were present, among whom were Messrs. J. B. B. and J. B. B. Glancing in the office I could see tokens of champagne, boxes of cigars, and other articles, which were supposed to be given by the public as prizes to be distributed according to the judges' award.

Now, what I would like to know is why were they not given to the winners? When I saw the boxes of champagne go to the hands of the judges, I was very much surprised. What became of the prize of cigars from the Brandon House, and the box of cigars from the Brandon House, and the box of cigars from the Brandon House?

When I saw the prize of cigars from the Brandon House, and the box of cigars from the Brandon House, and the box of cigars from the Brandon House, I was very much surprised. What became of the prize of cigars from the Brandon House, and the box of cigars from the Brandon House, and the box of cigars from the Brandon House?

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Judge Miller to become Attorney-General and Premier.

From the Winnipeg Sun.

It is currently reported that Judge Miller will be sworn in as Attorney-General on Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, and later on will succeed Hon. Norquay as Premier of the Province. A sun reporter called on His Lordship this morning, and asked:—

"Is it true, Judge, that you are about to enter the Liberal Government as Attorney-General?"

"Yes, it is probable that I shall be sworn in early in the week."

"And you will run for Minister?"

"I think so."

"It is further said you enter the Government on condition of also becoming Premier?"

"That will not be until after the next session of the Legislature, at any rate."

There will be a meeting of the electors at the residence of Mr. McBurney, Peacock settlement, this evening, at seven o'clock.

Mr. Woodworth and Mr. Daly will be present and they will address the electors on the issues of the hour.

Measrs. Woodworth and Daly will address a meeting of the electors in the town hall, tomorrow (Thursday) evening, at seven o'clock.

Mr. Stiles has been invited to attend this meeting by special invitation.

From all points comes the assurance that Mr. Woodworth will bear the palm in the forthcoming electoral contest. We have not yet heard that any great result have followed from some of the seventeen meetings, which are to be held in the interest of the no-party candidate, but if the results are similar to the Milford cases, Mr. Woodworth will have nothing to fear.

FLATTERING A QUEEN.

Queen Elizabeth loved flattery, and on one occasion her passion was fully gratified, as the following anecdote, told in the New York Ledger, testifies:

"When the Duke de Villa Medina was at the English court, he was present, and took part in a tournament given by Elizabeth, where his gallantry and manly beauty made him the object of all observers. At the close of the sport, as the Duke came near to the Queen, she said to him, pleasantly, that she would like to know who was the chosen lady of so gallant a knight; whereupon he shook his head and would not further answer."

"But," persisted Elizabeth, "there must be, somewhere, a lady whose beauty and perfection of character gives to her a deeper peace in your heart than is yielded to another?"

"Ah! yes, gracious Madam, there is one such."

"And may I not know who she is?"

"The Duke reflected a moment, and then answered that he would inform her on the morrow."

"And on the morrow he sent to the Queen, enclosed in a box of sandal-wood and mother-of-pearl, a small mirror."

"Those who know Elizabeth's character can imagine how deeply this bit of flattery must have touched her."
